

CRICED

CRICED The Center for Research on International Cooperation in Educational Development

University of Tsukuba is the only university member in Japan for the Southeast Asian Ministers of Education Organization (SEAMEO)*

*SEAMEO is a regional intergovernmental organization established in 1965 among governments of Southeast Asian countries to promote regional cooperation in education, science and culture in the region.

CRICED has a Khon Kaen Office in the premises of KKU's Institute for Research and Development in Teaching Profession (IRDTP) for ASEAN.

KKU acts as a logistic hub of the Greater Mekong Sub-region (GMS) countries. We have been collaborating with KKU to disseminate Japanese education methods to the ASEAN countries.

Sharing Japanese-style primary education to the world

- Spreading Japanese-style primary education to the world
- Researches on educational development cooperation model in accordance with regional needs
- Providing training for the teachers from the developing countries
- Collaboration with international organizations and education ministries; SEAMEO, APEC, and MGIEP
